Motivational Interviewing in Supervision

an interactive live webinar experience with Bob Jopec, LMHC

member of the Motivational Interviewing Network of Trainers (MINT)

Motivational interviewing (MI) is a method of guided communication that allows a practitioner to engage with a person’s strengths and help them to articulate and act upon their own reasons for making a positive change. This twelve-hour event presumes participants’ prior familiarity with the spirit, skills, and strategies of MI, and assists them to adapt those elements to supervisory engagement, enabling participants to 1) facilitate employees’ self-assessment and motivation to grow professionally, 2) improve their own awareness of the impact of the processes of MI on supervision, and 3) increase their own competence and confidence in delivering empathic and impactful conversational interventions.

Overall Goal: Participants will develop the capacity to deploy the elements and processes of MI in supervisory conversation.

Target Audience: Helping professionals in supervisory roles, including social workers, mental health counselors, recovery coaches, rehabilitation counselors, and others; participants must have completed both Basic and Intermediate MI trainings.

Learning Level: Advanced

Learning Objectives:

- * Describe the application of the spirit and skills of MI to the process of supervisory engagement.
- * List the processes of MI as they relate to supervision.
- * Demonstrate the use of the strategies of MI, as well as MI-related evocation tools, to facilitate self-assessment and elicit change talk toward professional growth.

$200 per person!
